

10th Annual Force Health Protection Conference

“FORCE HEALTH PROTECTION THROUGH COLLABORATION”

The Deployment Healthcare Track Presents

Heidi Terrio, COL, USA, MD, MPH

COL Heidi Terrio is the Director of Deployment Health for the Soldier Readiness Center at the Evans Army Community Hospital, Fort Carson, Colorado. She is responsible for implementing a best practices program to conduct Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) screening for all returning Soldiers at the Fort Carson Soldier Readiness Center. She was also a faculty staff physician at Madigan Army Medical Center.

COL Terrio previously practiced as the Officer in Charge of the Consolidated Troop Medical Clinic in the Department of Family Practice.

She worked in the ER both at Bayne Jones and Silas B. Hays Army Community Hospitals. As an epidemiologist she was assigned to the Program Evaluation/Immunization Department at the Los Angeles County Health Department.

COL Terrio received her MD from the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences and her MPH from the University of California, Los Angeles. She has published research on vaccination coverage in the West Indies, Trinidad/Tobago, and the sexual behavior of female Soldiers.

Along with Alden Prowell, Fort Carson Soldier Readiness Center and
Lisa Brenner, PhD, Denver VA Medical Center

Speaking on

Fort Carson Soldier Readiness Center (SRC): Collaborative Interdisciplinary Efforts Aimed at Establishing Evidence-Based Best Practices

Wednesday, August 8, 2007

8:00–10:00 a.m.

Willis Room,
East Tower, 2nd Floor

Presentation Objectives:

- Identify three target groups assisted in the one stop/multidisciplinary approach.
- Identify the importance of early screening for TBI & the SRC process/outcomes.
- Identify the VA/Fort Carson linkages for Soldiers regarding TBI/PTSD care.